
Editorial Policy

The electronic magazine "Humanidades, Tecnología y Ciencia, del Instituto Politécnico Nacional" (Humanities, Technology and Science, of the National Polytechnic Institut, in English) publishes scientific, technological and theoretical articles as well as monographs, all products of research in both science and humanities.

The contents are protected by copyright laws. All manuscripts are accepted for their publication under the statement that their total or partial content has not been published in any other scientific magazine. The compilation of such articles for their posterior publication in books will be allowed in every case, citing the previous publication within this medium and reserving copyright to the author.

Previous to their publication, articles will be analyzed by two specialists in the subject and, in case of controversy, the article will be delivered to a third specialist for another analysis. All articles published in the magazine reflect the personal standpoint and opinion of their authors, so the people belonging and responsible of the electronic magazine "Humanidades, Tecnología y Ciencia, of the Instituto Politécnico Nacional", accept no responsibility whatsoever for any prejudice coming from the information and affirmations within the authors' texts. In the same manner, they will not be held responsible for any contracted or hired publicity.

Also, they deny any guarantee relating the correction, precision, trust, commerciality or use that can be derived from the information within the published articles.